Colonial Ball.

The following forecast of a colonial ball to be given this evening in the Arlington Hotel, Washington, D. C., in aid of the fund now being raised by the Daughters of the American Revolution for their Memorial Hall, will be interesting to Virginians because of the participation in it by a number of Virginia Daughters.

The "Post" says: Many historical characters will be portrayed by descendants, who will wear some of the heirlooms kept from generation to generation.

Mrs. Morgan Lewis will personate Alexander Scudder, her three times great-grandmother, who married John Smith, an officer in the Dutchess Company Militia Minutemen, who entertained in his home a whole company of soldiers, and party officers sat at his table at one time at Saratoga during the surrender of Burgoyne.

Miss Anne Magill Fauntleroy will personate her great-grandmother, Katherine Brooke, granddaughter of Robert Brooke, a Virginia member of Lord Baltimore's privy council of state in 1635, then president of the council and acting Governor under parliamentary commission in 1637; wife of Burr Powell, son of Colonel Levin Powell, commander of the first Virginia Regiment, then colonel commanding the organization of the Minutemen of Virginia during the Revolution; member of the convention which revised the Federal Constitution; was an elector when John Adams was chosen President.

THE BIRTHDAY OF LEE.

By WALTER FRANCIS.

Robert Edward Lee, born at Stratford, Westmoreland county, Va., January 19, 1807, died at Lexington, Va., October 12, 1870.

THOU mirror of old chivalry
Guerdon of tears is not for thee
Captain.

But glory for thy work well wrought
And for thy good fight, manlike fought,
And for the creed thy white life taught,
My Captain!

The creed of simple manliness,
The creed of utter selflessness,
Captain.

The creed wherein thy life struck root,
And drawing thence its sap, had fruit
In shining deeds. Hail and salute,
My Captain!

When shall we see thy like again,
Or such a breed of mighty men
Captain.

As followed the colors into the fight,
Into the heart of the hopeless fight,
And died there in a whole world's sight
My Captain!

Chosen bearer of the sword of the Lord
Anointed Evangel of the militant Word,
Captain.

Lo, on thy shoulder sternly was laid
The victorious and glorious accolade
Wherewith the knights of God are made,
My Captain!

And from far summits, old and hoar,
Where a glory camps forevermore,
Captain.

Wild bugles blow the deathless fame
Across this world, and like red flame
In stubble, runs thy wide acclaim,
My Captain!

GEN. LONGSTREET

HONORED ANYHOW

Pickett Camp decided unanimously last night to pass resolutions of respect to General James Longstreet. The camp received an order from Judge Christian, grand commander, directing that resolutions of respect to the memory of General Gordon be prepared, but no mention was made of General Longstreet. Doubtless this was because General Gordon was commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, of which the Grand Camp and all the subordinate camps of the State are a part, and not because he was a better beloved officer than General Longstreet.

However, after the order of Judge Christian had been read, and the committee appointed to draft the resolutions honoring General Gordon, Colonel Loehr stated that he thought the camp should certainly take similar action regarding General Longstreet; that General Longstreet was a brave and great soldier, and generally led his men to victory. Comrades Talley, Bass and others agreed with Colonel Loehr, and the motion made by Colonel Loehr was adopted. Commander Gates Chapin, of the 1st Virginia, and Talley to draft the resolutions, and Comrades Loehr, Talley and Bass to the Longstreet paper. Comrade R. F. Morris was elected historian. The remainder of the session was taken up in transacting routine business.

Invitations have been issued for a subscription german to be given in Belvidere Hall Friday evening, January 22, from 6 to 10 o'clock.

Chaperones for the evening will be Mr. and Mrs. Adolphus Blair, Mr. and Mrs. Horace S. Hawes, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. P. Mayo, Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Talley, Mr. and Mrs. James T. Rutherford, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Hill and Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Blankenship.

Pickets may be had of Mr. Thomas W. Brockington, Mr. Charles D. Larus, Jr., Mr. Roy M. Jones, Mr. William Archer, or Mr. Percy Montague, Jr.

The Loving Circle of King's Daughters, Mrs. T. William Pemberton, leader, will meet 10 o'clock, January 19th, at 4 P. M., in the home of Mrs. J. William Craig, No. 210 North Lombardy Street.

The Rev. R. B. Peck, Ph.D., for eleven years missions in Japan, is to speak at the First English Evangelical Lutheran Church, Seventh Street, between Broad and Grace Streets, Tuesday evening, 19th, at 8 o'clock. The public is cordially invited. Any one from Japan,

HONOR TO DEAD HEROES

Lee-Jackson Day Will be Observed Here To-day.

SCHOOLS AND BANKS CLOSE

Parade Sunday and Wreaths Placed on Monuments of Two Confederate Chiefs.

Lee-Jackson Day, an old holiday with a new name, will be celebrated in Richmond and Virginia to-day quietly and without great outward show.

The occasion commemorates the birthday of both Lee and Jackson, the two most brilliant names in the register of Southern heroes. Just when old "Stonewall" was born nobody, including himself, knew. But the date was known to be on or near that of his great commander, Lee, and it was recently decided to observe the two together. Hence the Lee-Jackson Day, of which the present is the first.

QUIET CELEBRATION.

The celebration of the day will be very quiet here and throughout the State generally. The occasion is a State holiday, and as such will receive the respect of all State offices and institutions. The public schools of the city will be closed in honor of the event. Books were laid aside yesterday, and to-day the great army of school children are free to enjoy themselves as they will. The State offices will all observe the day, and will not open at all this morning. It is hardly likely that any of the business houses of the city will suspend operations.

So far as the Confederate veteran organizations here are concerned, the celebration will be every where. The distinct feature of the day will be the observance to-night at Lee Camp Hall by the Daughters of the Confederacy. A number of the veterans will be decorated with crosses. An attractive programme, including music, has been prepared. The speaker for the evening will be General Eppa Hunton, who led one of Pickett's brigades at Gettysburg.

PARADE ON SUNDAY.

The most notable feature of the celebration of Lee-Jackson Day occurred on Sunday. A parade made up of the local militia, formed at Seventh and Marshall Streets, and headed by Iardella's Band, marched to Grace, out Grace to Ryland, thence to Lee monument, and from there to Jackson's monument in the Capitol Square. Wreaths were placed upon the monuments to the two Southern heroes. Then the parade marched to Monumental Episcopal Church.

In the church every seat was taken, and many stood in the rear. The sermon was preached by the Rev. J. Cleveland Hall, of Danville, chaplain of the Seventeenth Regiment. The Rev. Mr. Hall is a graduate of the West Point Military Academy. He rode in the parade as a member of Colonel Anderson's staff. At the church he left his horse to doff the military apparel and put on his robes as a minister of the gospel. His sermon was a strong and eloquent one, and it made a deep impression upon his hearers.

SERMON TO LEE CAMP.

On Sunday night at the Laurel Street Methodist Church the Rev. Dr. H. E. Johnson delivered the annual sermon to Lee Camp, Confederate Veterans. The church was well filled and the occasion was a most interesting one. Dr. Johnson's subject was "A Devout Soldier."

Of Jackson he said:

"But in seeking for whose life would pre-eminently illustrate my text I turn instinctively to the name of Thomas Jonathan Jackson. Born amid the rugged grandeur of Virginia mountains, he seemed to incorporate their granite into himself. His love of fighting he inherited from his Irish ancestry. Left an orphan in his childhood, he found a home with his uncle, on whose farm he worked while not at school. Who about the age of seventeen he decided to secure a military education. Jackson possessed that rare mental combination—a marvelous comprehension of the whole situation with a keen capacity to follow every detail. His penetration of the enemy's plans was like that of the eagle. He worked while the rapidity of his movements completely bewildered his foes. With less than 10,000 effective men he kept 70,000 of the enemy busy; sometimes hunting for him and sometimes afraid they would find him. Jackson was a great military genius, but he was much more than this; he was a Christian of the loftiest type."

"In early manhood he encountered some doctrinal difficulties, but there once settled, he became immovable in his faith and devotion to the captain of his salvation."

"Every devout soldier is magnanimous toward his enemy. He does not hate because he fights, and when he conquers he inflicts no other wounds than those received in honorable warfare. Only the lion snarling or will snap and bite at those who decline to follow his trail."

"In all that I have read of Jackson I find but one disrespectful word applied to his adventures. When pursuing a fleeing the Valley, and failing to overtake him, he said: 'They ran like deer, and I could not catch them.' Every huntsman who has come home without the game will sympathize with Stonewall."

"Comrades, he has passed over the river to rest under the shade of the trees. Let us follow his flag, and in the morning we shall join with him again on the plains eternal."

The singing by the choir, under the direction of Mr. Egan Coker, the chorister, was especially good.

The mode is especially suited to the fancy vestings so much in vogue. The materials, however, are unlimited, as the flannels and velvets are just as pretty as cotton or silk. Crepe de chine will reproduce this design charmingly, with the little roses and puff balls made of either chiffon or crepe de chine. These little accessories will add distinction to a plain waist and for a dainty afternoon or evening waist, it would be hard to find a trimming that is so inexpensive. The embroidery might be done by hand or simply machine stitched with French knots between the rows of stitching. The pattern could be used for a plain or fancy waist with equally pleasing results.

Sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches, bust measure.

On receipt of 10 cents these patterns will be sent to any address. All orders must be directed to THE LITTLE FOLKS PATTERN CO., No. 75 Fifth Avenue, New York. When ordering, please do not fail to mention number.

GETS GOOD RECRUITS.

Company C Has Sixty-two Men on Roll—Outlook Bright.

Company C, Seventeenth Regiment, had an unusually fine meeting last night and enlisted several men, bringing the roll of the company up to sixty-two. The company is now ready for inspection, as is every other Richmond company. All the Seventeenth Regiment companies soon to receive their new flags from the United States government. The outlook for the Richmond militia is better now than it has been for a long time.

Captain Skiplwith is very much encouraged at the high class of new men just taken into Company C. A number of them were trained at the Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and the drilling last night was exceedingly satisfactory.

Albemarle Club Officers.

The annual meeting of the Albemarle Club was held last night, the feature of which usually is the election of officers. On this occasion all of the former officers were re-elected. Dr. Moses D. Love, Jr., is president. A social meeting followed the business session.

Mr. Bonini Ill.

Mr. Louis Bonini, a well known young member of the "Hullin colony," is at the Virginia Hospital to undergo an operation. The operation will be performed to-day.

The Store's January White Sale Commences To-Day

With more variety and greater money-saving possibilities than any of our previous sales have ever offered.

When the highest authority in the land—the United States Agricultural Department—reports the cotton crop 1,250,000 bales short, it must be obvious—aside from other causes—that prices on cotton must positively continue to advance.

With such conclusive evidence to induce immediate buying, we might rest our argument, but good fortune and good foresight has added greater strength to our claim. We bought our present offerings in cotton so long ago and to such good advantage that you can buy here while this splendid gathering lasts at last year's prices, and in many instances at even lower figures. Some numbers of special interest follow:

What has been said of cotton might in a general way be said with equal emphasis of linens. We have many bargains here which our position as importers makes it impossible for other houses to offer at near so little money.

Heading this list is 4,000 yards of Guaranteed All-Linen Lawn, 36 inches wide, at a yard.....25c

The Table Linens consist of Made Cloths, Napkins and Damask by the yard. From the viewpoint of an economist, they form a mighty interesting group.
